Re George Sipel

I again had a talk with Theodore Knothe, former representative of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, at New Brunswick.

Knothe resides at Oakhurst, New Jersey, but is proprietor of Ted's Restaurant, at 1605 F Street (near 16th Avenue), South Belmar, which is the best place to find him if he is wanted.

Knothe still claims that he does not recall whether he visited Nellie Lo Russell's place with Sipel before going to Bound Brook to look for Recorder Flammer on the night of the murder. In fact, it is his best recollection that the trip to Bound Brook and to Nellie's place were made on different dates.

I questioned him as to the hour of the night that he had left New Brunswick to go to Bound Brook and also the date. He is certain that the trip was made on the night of the murder and while he cannot fix the hour, he says that they left New Brunswick before dark and it was not until they had reached Bound Brook that it became dark enough to require Sipel to turn on the headlights of his auto.

Respectfully yours,

David Thompson
